UNIT 6

6-s Scene: Olvera Street and Little Tokyo

This is the old Plaza in downtown Los Angeles. It is the birthplace of L.A. The buildings are 100 years old. The Pico House is the first hotel in Los Angeles. There are many beautiful old trees in the Plaza. A man is walking across the street to the Plaza. This is the first fire station in L.A. The Plaza with its kiosk is a beautiful place to sit, rest and relax.

What are the people watching? They are watching some entertainment. What is the man doing? He is walking toward the crowd.

This is an old church on Olvera Street. There are no cars on Olvera Street, but there are many small shops. The Spanish name of L.A. is on this cross. Los Angeles began on September 11, 1781. L.A. is over 200 years old.

There is a great place to eat Mexican food across from the church. This couple with their baby is having some food. Inside the restaurant people are waiting to order. These women are making tortillas. They cook them on the stove. Outside, people are sitting around tables and enjoying the beautiful day.

Tourists are walking among the stands. A woman with a purse is looking for a pretty dress. A family is looking for a restaurant. They are hungry.

We are going down the stairs to a candle shop. Look at the candles! Look at the different colors and sizes. The cashier is opening the cash register. Now we are leaving the candle shop and going up the stairs. There is a woman in front of a stall.

There's a sidewalk restaurant. It's nice to eat outside all year in L.A. Those two men are looking for some postcards. The stores on Olvera Street are very old. The women are putting on some hats. Their friend is taking a picture of them.

Look at the flowers. This is one of the first houses in Los Angeles. Its name is Avila Adobe. People take tours through it every day. There are many interesting things to see and buy at Olvera Street.

Two women are sitting in front of a huge tree. Is he a statue or a person?

That's the train station. It's a little east of the Old Plaza. Trains leave for San Diego, San Francisco and the East from Union Station every day.

Let's take Los Angeles Street to Little Tokyo. That's a beautiful hotel across the street. A man is waiting for a bus at a bus stop. He is smoking.

Let's cross the street and see Little Tokyo. Those kids are playing near a fountain. This is Weller Court. There are many stores and restaurants here. Let's go up the stairs to a beautiful garden. This garden is at the New Otani Hotel. Look at downtown behind the garden.

Here is one of the big stores in Little Tokyo. The people are shopping. What are they buying? Little Tokyo is southeast of City Hall and the Music Center.

Let's cross the street again and see more of Little Tokyo. Here's a camera shop. Here's a grocery store. The people are buying fruits and vegetables. Here are some other stores.

This is the plaza of the Japanese American Cultural and Community Center. Two mothers and their children are walking across the plaza. What an interesting fountain!

This is the new theater at the cultural center. Look at the sculpture in front of the theater. There is an exquisite garden next to the theater. The couple is looking at the garden and the people in it. What a wonderful place to relax!

Do you want tickets for some future events? There's the box office. What beautiful things in that store!

This is the Japanese Village Plaza Mall. There's a boy sitting on some rocks. People are sitting and eating next to the fountain. She is listening to her radio.

She is talking to her husband. He is eating an ice cream cone. Their baby likes ice cream too. The baby's parents are happy. These children are eating snow cones. He is carrying a baby on his back.

How much is the food? Is it expensive? Do you want some sushi? There are many Japanese restaurants and stores here. This is Little Tokyo.

6-D Dialog

Richard: Let me call her.
Susan: OK.
Richard: What's her number?

Susan: It's 250-1133.
Richard: Hello, Ann?
Ann: Yes, this is Ann. Who is this?
Richard: This is Richard.
Ann: Hi, how are you? It's so good to hear your voice.
Richard: It's good to hear you too.
Ann: Where are you?
Richard: I'm at a restaurant downtown near the Music Center.
Ann: Do you want me to meet you there?
Richard: No, not here. I think the restaurant is closing. What are you doing right now?
Ann: I'm talking to you on the phone.
Richard: I know that, but what are you doing tonight? Are you working tonight?
Ann: Not exactly. I need to read my lesson for tomorrow and write a short letter to my sister in New York.
Richard: Do you have time to see me tonight?
Ann: Sure. I don't usually read my lesson until just before I go to bed. What time is it now?
Richard: It's only 7 o'clock. I need to check into the hotel first.
Ann: Why don't we have dessert and a drink at your hotel after you check in?
Richard: Fine.
Ann: Which hotel are you staying at?
Richard: Susan and I are going to the Los Angeles Towers right now to check in.
Ann: Susan?
Richard: Yes, Susan is with me. She met me at the airport and is showing me around L.A.
Ann: Oh, how nice.
Richard: Is it OK if she has dessert with us at the hotel?
Ann: Sure. Why not? What time is good for you?

Richard: How about 9 o'clock?
Ann: That's a little late, isn't it?
Richard: Well, then is 8:30 OK?
Ann: Fine. See you then. 'Bye.
Richard: 'Bye.
Susan: So, she's at home.
Richard: Yeah. Finally, we know where she is.
Susan: Yeah.
Richard: Where is Ann living now? Does she still live in Pasadena?
Susan: Yes, she does.
Richard: Does she still live in the same house?
Susan: Yes, she does. Why are you asking so many questions about her?
Richard: Just curious.

Susan: Well, let's go to the hotel. I'm getting tired.
Richard: Do you want me to call a taxi? You don't need to drive me to the hotel if you're too tired.
Susan: No, that's OK. I'm OK. Just a little tired. Wine makes me sleepy.

(Susan and Richard leave the restaurant and get in Susan's car. Then they arrive at the Los Angeles Towers Hotel.)

Susan: Here we are, the L.A. Towers.
Richard: How much does a room cost here?
Susan: I'm not sure. Let's find out.

(Inside hotel lobby.)

Desk Clerk: May I help you?
Richard: Yes, I'd like a room.
Clerk: For how many nights, sir?
Richard: Let's see. Ah ... seven.
Clerk: Excuse me. Let me check the register. Would you like a single room or a double?
Richard: Single.
Clerk: Single or double bed?
Richard: Single. How much is the room per night?
Clerk: $50.00.

Richard: OK. Fine.

Clerk: Would you please sign the register?

(Richard signs and the clerk gives him the key.)

Clerk: Here's your key. Do you need any help with your bag?

Richard: No, thank you.

Susan: Let me carry one of your bags.

Richard: OK. Thanks.

Susan: What floor are you on?

Richard: The fourth.

Susan: What room number?

Richard: 417.

(Susan and Richard find the room.)

Susan: Here it is.

Richard: Hold my wallet a second, OK? (He opens door with keys.)

Susan: Oh, it's nice.

Richard: It has a beautiful view of a park.

(Both look at the view.)

Susan: Don't close the door.

Richard: Why?

Susan: Because it's a little hot in here, isn't it?

Richard: OK. Let's keep the door open a few minutes.

(Richard puts his bag down.)

Susan: Do you want me to keep your wallet in my purse?

Richard: OK. You're going to the restaurant with me, aren't you?

Susan: Sure. Let's go. When is Ann coming?

Richard: At 8:30.

(They leave hotel room.)

Susan: Where is the hotel restaurant and bar?
Richard: I don't know.
Susan: Ask that man over there.
Richard: Sir, would you tell me where the bar and restaurant are?

(The man doesn't answer Richard's question.)

Man: I'm sorry. I don't ... uh
Richard: Do you understand me?
Man: I don't.
Susan: He doesn't speak English, Richard.
Richard
(to man): OK. Thank you, anyway.

Susan: There's a sign for the restaurant. It's on the 25th floor.

(Arrive at Sky Room.)

Richard: What a view of L.A.! There is no end to this city. Where does L.A. begin and where does it end?

Susan: It starts at the beach near Santa Monica and it ends at the San Gabriel Mountains.

Richard: What a city!

Susan: Let's sit near the window.

Richard: Yeah.

(They sit near the window. Richard takes out a pack of cigarettes.)

Susan: Do you smoke, Richard?

Richard: Not often, just occasionally, when I'm nervous.

Susan: Why are you smoking now? You aren't nervous now, are you?

Richard: I'm not sure. What time is it?

Susan: It's 8:35. Ah, there's Ann at the door.

(Both look toward the door.)
