The New Puppy

"I cannot wait!" Kate said. They were going to the corn maze. Stalks of corn rose above her. She went to a table to get an apple. Then she started. She ran as fast as her legs could take her. It was a 10 mile run. "It is going to take a long time to do this," she thought. The first mile she saw a seagull. Then she walked. It was getting tiring! Then she came to a bench to rest. She sat down to take a drink. She saw her neighbors crossing by. On the second mile, she saw a sign that said "free corn", so she picked a piece of corn. She found a fountain. She washed the corn off. She took a bite. CRUNCH! It was the best corn she's ever tasted. Then on the third mile, she took a rest. She took a drink of water. She ran past through the fourth mile. She saw a tree. She climbed the tree so she could see how far she still had. She still had a long time to go. Then she saw a glimmering package. She reached for it! She opened it. Something jumped out on her! It ran away. She ran after it. Finally she got it; a sandy colored dog.

She picked it up. The warm fur was warm against her arm. She put him in her backpack. He barked "arf!" Kate wanted to name him Charlie. She found a leash in her bag. It was about to rain so she got her rain jacket on. But it did not rain! It was almost the tenth mile when... Kate bumped into her friend Lucy. "Oh hi!" Kate said. "I found a dog!" Lucy said, "Can I see him?" "His name is Charlie." "I want a dog" Lucy said with a frown on her face. "Do you want to take care of my dog with me at home?" "Yes please!" said Lucy. "We can walk him and we can clean him. It will be awesome!" So they started back home. When they got home, they washed Charlie, they played with Charlie, and they loved Charlie. Then they made a bed for Charlie. She put Charlie in his bed and turned out his lights. First they kissed Charlie so he can have a good sleep. The next morning, Charlie woke Kate up. Charlie had chicken for breakfast. It was yum yum yum! Then Kate took Charlie for a walk. It turned into a run. "Tomorrow is your birthday! Kate squealed. Then the day came. Kate gave Charlie a new bed for her present for him.

Then Kate's mom brought a huge present and put it on the table. Charlie jumped up on the table. He ripped the wrapping paper off. In the box, Kate saw a brand new leash. She was so happy! It was the best thing she ever saw. The next day, she took Charlie for a walk. It was the best thing ever! When they got home, she cleaned Charlie so he was as clean as can be for tonight. Tonight, they were going to a dog party. She was so excited! Then someone knocked on the door. Kate ran to get the door. She saw Lucy at the door. Lucy asked if Kate could play. "Sorry" said Kate. "I can't play." She closed the door. Then it was time to go to the dog party. Kate got her shoes on and got in the car. Finally they were there. But there were no people there. Then they waited for some people to get there. Surprisingly, only one person came. An hour passed and three more people came. Four hours passed. There were so many people that there were over 20 dogs! Then it was time for the food. There was hot dogs and hamburgers. They were good. "I love this place!" Kate said. Then she walked her dog as far as he could go. Then she played a board game. It was very fun. Then it was dessert time. Kate got a brownie and a cupcake and that's it. She was full when it was time to leave. When they got home, she went to bed. The next morning, Kate had a muffin for breakfast. It was very very very good. And then her mom said that they were going out that night. The night came and they got into the car and went. It was not far. Finally they got there. They ordered. They got pizza. It was good. Kate thought it was going to be a bad day but it turned out to be a good day.
