Thoreau Quotes

All good things are wild and free.

The question is not what you look at, but what you see.

Our truest life is when we are in our dreams awake.

It is not enough to be busy. So are the ants. The question is: What are we busy about?

Water is the only drink for a wise man.

In wildness is the preservation of the world.

We are constantly invited to be who we are.

Let nothing come between you and the light.

One of the most attractive things about the flowers is their beautiful reserve.

Heaven is under our feet as well as over our heads.

If you have built castles in the air...put the foundations under them.

That man is the richest whose pleasures are the cheapest.

Our life is frittered away by detail....simplify, simplify.

How many a man has dated a new era in his life from the reading of a book!

If a man does not keep pace with his companions, perhaps it is because he hears a different drummer. Let him step to the music which he hears.

I love the wild not less than the good.
