

Into The Cave

Once in a little house lived a girl named Ely and boy named Nat. They wanted to explore so they ran as far as they could, so far, they could not find their way back to their house. They slept in the cold. In the morning, they set off to find their way home. But they went the wrong way and found themselves at a cave. They walked into the cave; it was dark and even colder than outside. Ely stepped over the trap door, but Nat did not, he fell right into the maze part. He did not know the right way to go! They lived with their grandmother and she always said to retrace their steps. But Nat could not find his way back. Ely looked all over the cave but she could not find Nat. Ely found a map of the cave and she found a huge treasure chest filled with gold and a compass with a flashlight. She started to use the flashlight because it was very dark in the cave. Ely called for Nat. He ran to his sister's voice. Using the map, Nat and Ely went the right way and found their way out of the cave. But they were still lost. They couldn't find their house. But then the police found them and brought them back home. They brought their grandmother back to the cave and they took the treasure chest home with them. They got very rich and were able to get more toys so they were not bored. And after that they did not go back into the cave.

The End.
