

The BOOM!!!!

One day Mr. Alpaca was in his house and he heard a giant BOOM!!! He didn't know where it came from. He went to investigate. On the way, he went to see if his friend, Mr. Llama, heard it. Mr. Alpaca rang Mr. Llama's doorbell. Mr. Llama came to the door. Mr. Alpaca asked, "Did you hear that giant BOOM!"

"Ya."

Mr. Alpaca said, "Do you know what it was?"

"No."

"Do you want to go and see what it was?"

"Ya, sure." So they went to figure out what it was. Then somebody chucked a key at them and they wanted to figure out what it opened. So they tried Mr. Llama's door first. That didn't work so they went to Mr. Llama's neighbor's house. That didn't work either. So they thought it was useless and they dropped it on the ground. But then the key came to life and was fighting them. In the end, the key didn't win. So Mr. Alpaca chucked the key as far as he could, which was five feet. So Mr. Llama tried. He threw it five feet. So they just put it in a garbage can. Then they still wanted to know what the boom was. They walked the way the boom came from. They kept walking, and then they came to a giant hole in the ground. Mr. Alpaca saw little black marks on the ground. So they definitely thought this was where the boom was. They wanted to figure out what set off the boom. So they started a search party. But I didn't find anything. So they kept searching for the trouble maker. They searched far and high. They asked so many people but still, it was nobody. They thought how could nobody do it. Nobody would set a bomb off. So they thought it was just an earthquake. And on the news the next morning,

"Good morning."

"Yesterday night there was an earthquake in San Francisco California." In the end, it was just an earthquake. But what was the boom?